Road Building

"It is time for Burlington to seek out a source of good gravel for our roads. Some of the crushed stone roads made last year are already in a beastly poor condition, and it is almost impossible to repair the holes in macadam. Gravel roads in Chittenden county are holding their own to a gratifying degree."—Burlington Free Press.

The contemporary voices what The Rutland News has urged times with-out number. The average stone roads built in Vermont are an absolute waste of money. No matter how well constructed nor how seemingly enduring they are, after a season or two they are pounded to pieces and are worse than they were before anything was done toward improving them. They don't stand the automobile traffic. It is passing strange that the state highway department continues to put in this class of roads anywhere. Where sand or muck are to be contended with a good stone foundation, properly drained, would seem to be necessary, as well as cheaper, than crushed stone and it can be kept smooth at the minimum of expense. Rutland is wasting less money on stone roads now than it formerly did, but it ought not to spend a dollar on macadam.—Rutland News.

A Season of Torture for Some

Hay fever causes untold misery to thousands. Asthma, too, counts its sufferers by the hundreds. No remedy has proven more beneficial for hay fever and asthma, as well as coughs and colds, than Foley's Honey and Tar. It soothes that raw, rasping feeling in the throat, relieves hoarseness and wheezing, brings comfort by making breathing easier, heals inflammation, and by allaying these disturbances permits refreshing, natural slumber. Contains no opiates. Sold Everywhere.

Nothing New.

Wife—Don't you like my new hat, dear? Husband—Yes, its all right. Wife—Well, I bought it on your account, dear. Husband—Yes, you usually do!

FRANK E. HOWE, Editor and Pub.

Saturday, August 5, 1916.

There have been over six thousand cases of infantile paralysis in greater New York since the present outbreak started, and more than one thousand deaths. From the city the disease has been carried to hundreds of other points. Probably more than a quarter of a million people, mostly children, have fled from the city to escape the dangers. Let no one think that the outbreak is nearly over. Rather it has just started. It is the part of wisdom not to be scared but to be mindful of the danger and to see that the quarantine is strictly enforced.

The senatorial campaign has about six weeks more to run, but so far has utterly failed to arouse the voters of Vermont to any considerable interest on the part of the rank and file of the voters. In southern Vermont, at least, not one voter in ten is even interested so far as one can judge from discussion in public and private. Years ago there was a strong Republican organization in Vermont, but this broke down after the death of Senator Proctor and his son Governor Proctor. In fact it had been pretty much wrecked in the McCullough campaign of 1902. During the past few years there have been individual groups of party leaders, but absolutely no inside organization or machine. Since the present campaign started an effort has been made to pick up the scattered fragments of the old Republican machine and put it in operation again. The promoters of this made over outfit are not excessively friendly to Senator Page, but are trying out their new machine in behalf of the senator, just to see if it will work. All over the state it can be observed that the big and little henchmen who always stand pat and stay put are lifting for Page. A few men of independent mind who want to see something real done are for Fletcher. Another group of gentlemen, who personally admire Governor Gates for his many fine qualities, are for the governor. These three groups all told do not include more than a fraction of the Republican voters in this section at least. Fully seventy-five percent of the voters are not even interested so far. The real battle is yet to be fought.

Improving Potatoes

The newest development in Vermont agriculture is reported from Windsor County. In that ancient political division, acting on the principle that potatoes may be improved in yielding power and freedom from disease by seed selection, six farmers cooperated with the county agent in carrying out the tuber unit method of potato improvement. From 25 to 100 potatoes of the desired size, shape and quality were selected from the stock of seed. Each potato was cut into four parts of as equal size as possible. The four pieces from each potato were planted consecutively so that each set of four hills represented the progeny from a single potato. At digging time each group of four hills was kept separate, weighed and noted for uniformity, quality, etc. The ten best groups were kept for planting this year, thus the unit this year became the product from four hills instead of a single potato.

By this means, it is expected, a strain of high yielding potatoes free from disease will be obtained. The probable outcome will be, that seed will be secured from the farmers doing the selecting, and the yield per acre of the whole community will be raised.

This work is not being done in a demonstrational way in the towns of Springfield, Ludlow, Woodstock and Stockbridge. Various other farmers in the county are starting this work through suggestion of the county agent.—Burlington News.

MR. CHAS. G. COLE,

Bennington, Vt.

Dear Sir:—

You know, but very likely your customers do not (unless, perhaps, they have worn one of our BUILT-TO-MEASURE SUITS) that we

our clothing—many tailors now-a-days, think, pressing it in is quite good enough. The "Built-in kind" gives lasting satisfaction; the pressed in sort loses its shape on the first wetting—and it doesn't take but mighty little wetting at that.

We do not believe in spoiling good cloth by bad work—it costs so little more that one would think all makers would adopt this policy.

That it is the right and only way to retain trade is proved by our tremendous growth.

If you have the gift of explaining to your friends what you know to be facts about our built to measure suits, you will do most of the tailoring business of your town this Fall.

Very truly,

ED. V. PRICE & CO.
